

Make Love Great Again

Rev. Gary W. Belk

Make Love Great Again... a phrase recently mentioned at a funeral service. So I ask this question, "To make love great again," does it not require a true definition of love? And if so, "Where does one find such a definition?" Making love great again requires an objective definition; good for all no matter where they reside or whether they are dead/alive.

A subjective definition of the concept of "Love" leads to the type of love being expressed in our society today; a behavior which is selfish and uses abduction as its tools to render an outcome solely for the purpose and interest of the bloviator.

To make "Love great again" will require a total submission to God. To paraphrase: "man can only love correctly because God has first loved man." The correct path then is: Love God, Self, and then you can love others. JOY - put Jesus first, Others second, and Yourself last..... so different from our society's current approach.
